Institution	University of Washington Libraries Seattle, Washington 98195
Project Director	Karl Lo Head, East Asian Library
Number of Participants	20
FY 87 Funding	$51,719
Grant Period	7-1-87 — 9-30-88
Length of Institute	2 weeks

Project Objectives

The duration of the institute is two weeks. During that period, the participants will deal with five major topics, as follows:

- The state of the field. This will be a broad-ranging survey of East Asian studies and librarianship in North America, focusing attention on teaching and research trends and the accompanying needs that will have to be filled by East Asian librarians.

- Information technology. The participants will be introduced to the state of the art in such manners as character processing in Chinese, Japanese, and Korean (hereinafter CJK). There will be sessions on library applications of computer technology, on personal computer applications, on making use of the mainframe computers on home campuses, and other related topics.

- East Asian bibliographies. Material will be presented on the history of the East Asian book and relevant bibliographical matters. Considerable attention of CJK materials in North America in the Romanized forms and in vernacular data.

- Library management. Theory and concepts in library management, particularly as they pertain to East Asian libraries, will be another major focus. Sessions will also be devoted to collection of data and to analysis of library statistics.

- National and international cooperation. It is now generally recognized that no one East Asian library can be wholly autonomous; no library can, by itself, meet the needs of all its users. Cooperation has been slow to develop, but recent trends in the use of computerized data make that cooperation not merely desirable but essential. To give just one example: the Chinese Chapter Code for Information Interchange (usually referred to as CCCII) was developed on Taiwan and is used by OCLC (Online Computer Library Center) and RLIN (Research Library Information Network) in North America. Just recently we were informed that CCCII (in spite of its place of origin) has been endorsed by the People's Republic of China. All East Asian libraries must be prepared to cooperate on both national and international bases.
